STITES-HERNDON.

Hopkinsville Belle Becomes Bride Of Louisville Business Man Last Friday.

Miss Joy Morrison Herndon yesterday afternoon became the bride of Mr. Gervais Taylor Stites, of Louisville. The wedding was a brilliant church affair and was solemnized at Grace Episcopal church, the rector, Rev. Geo. C. Abbott, officiating. Messrs. Hiram Thomas, John Stites, M. H. Nelson, Jr., and Frank Brewer, of Princeton, were the ushers. Mr. Brooks, of Louisville, was the best man. Misses Mary Goldthwaite and Bet Ware, were the maids. Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Stites took the afternoon train south for a bridal tour and will upon their return reside in Louisville. The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Herndon, one of Hopkinsville's prettiest girls. Stites is a promising young business man.—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

HERNDON

Makes Wonderful Success In Hotel Business at Enid, Oklahoma—The Loewen, Beautiful.

The visitor to a city in every instance wishes to know what class of hotel accommodations that city can give. This one feature is one of the best recommendations a city, desirous of improving its condition can possibly have. If the visitor is well taken care of at a hostelry where accommodations, service and a welcome as good cheer is given him, his impression of a city is greatly enhanced. Great Enid is not at all lacking in this respect for there are few hotels in the country that offer better service and accommodations than does the Loewen.

This hotel was built over two years ago by Mr. Albert Loewen, whose aim it is always to have and give the best the country affords. At first many of the citizens of Enid thought that this hotel with its 100 elegantly appointed rooms, was entirely too large for the size of the city, but little did they realize that a hotel to render the service necessary especially in a growing city like Enid, should be several years ahead of the conditions of the city.

The present management took the house one year ago. Under the able management of Mr. H. W. Herndon who has spent his life in the hotel business this house has developed until it now has outgrown its capacity and the management have decided to add another story to the present building, increasing it 50 rooms making 150 in all, furnished with hot and cold water, steam heat and phone service.

The culinary service is one of the most attractive features of this house this being far beyond that of the ordinary Oklahoma hotel.

Mr. Herndon operated the Herndon hotel at Herndon, Ky., for six years, the Grayson Springs hotel, at Grayson Springs, Ky., the largest summer resort in Kentucky, and the Henrietta at Princeton, Ky., an experience which more than qualifies him to meet all demands of the most exacting and exacting guest of the Loewen. He is by far the most capable hotel manager Enid has ever had.—Enid Daily

A meeting was set for today for the farmers to meet to confirm or reject the sale, which it was confidently expected would be made.

KINDNESS

Displayed By Dumb Animals Writes Mr. Penick-Unusual Incident.

Dear Mr. Babbage: My attention was called to an incident a week ago that I think deserves mention.

At my father's home they have a large Maltese cat which is not only a pet there, but in the entire neighborhood. It has often shown extraordinary sense.

W. P. Rommie, my brother-in-law has a Foxterrier dog which is a great pet too. The cat and dog have always been enemies. Seemingly, each one jealous of the other until recently, an incident worked wonders in their attitude towards each other. A lady was passing the home accompanied by a large vicious dog that attacked our little dog just as soon as he saw him. The lady said she thought her dog would kill the little fellow in spite of all she could do, when suddenly the cat sprang upon the scene, leaped on the big dog with all its weight. The cat scratched and bit the little dog until he freed the little one. After that the cat and little dog ran back to the house as fast as they could and ever since that day have been good friends and get along fine together.

It belonged to Dick Smith. Three persons were aboard and were unable to stop the boat. They were safely rescued at Tobinsport.

THE INSURGENTS OF CONGRESS

Who and What They Are and Why This Body of Progressive Republicans Was Formed

Causes For Which They Are Fighting and Side Lights on the Leaders of the Movement

By JAMES A. EDEGTON.

THERE are several questions, pertinent and impertinent, that arise concerning the insurgent movement. The political student asks, "What is an insurgent?" The general public, always interested in personalities, inquires, "Who is an insurgent?" Uncle Joe Cannon, in more or less bewitching and unstarling language, rises to the question, "Why is an insurgent?" To answer all three queries adequately would require several books. But as I have not time to write the books and nobody else would have time to read them we will have to tell it down.

To begin in the good old ordinal and ordinal way: Firstly, what is an insurgent? It depends on who is giving the answer. If it were Robert Marion La Follette he would doubtless reply, "An insurgent is the noblest word of God," having to mind, perhaps, one particular insurgent. If it were Cannon who was giving the opinion. But wait! There are postal laws in the United States against printing and disseminating certain kinds of words, and I have no desire to get either myself or the editor into jail. Either the La Follette or Cannon idea would probably be biased. To take a perfectly dispassionate view, an insurgent is one who wants to change the rules of the house in which he is serving; also the rules. He has a passion for ripping it out of Cannon and Aldrich. He wants to revise the tariff downward—emphasis on the "down"—or at least he wants to do it to all the tariff that does not affect his district. Finally

First he had to convert the state of Wisconsin, and when that job was done to his satisfaction he started in to convert the entire nation. This work is still in process. At about the time La Follette was making the Voltaire railroads and regaining jump sideways Albert Baird Cummins was causing the stout settlers to see red with his Iowa idea. The careers of these two progressive leaders have many features in common. Both had to fight the machine in their own states, both were elected to the governorship for three terms, and both while serving as governor were elected to the United States senate. Both are effective speakers, and both deal with facts rather than figures or speech. The difference in their personal appearance and manner, however, is as striking as the resemblance in their careers. Both are fighters, but Cummins is courtly and has gained respect from his opponents, while La Follette is pugnaous, with bristling mane.

Other senators that have broken out of the reservation are Jonathan P. Doolittle, who did not always insure, but was once time enough to eat out of one's hand, then grew excited and reactive when Cummins had a back fire behind him; Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, who has always been an orator and is becoming a statesman; Joseph L. Bristow of Kansas, who drove the crooks out of the postoffice department and is ready to perform the same service for any other crooked bunch that gets in his way; Knute Nelson and Moses Edwin Chapp of Minnesota, and the doctrine of correspondence, for the machine extends even to their top pieces, inside and outside. Thus La Follette wears a pompadour and Murdock a halo the color of a brick. Carrying out the correspondence, the senate insurance bribe, while that in the house is red headed.

The Red Badge of Courage.

Murdock himself is worth a newspaper story and probably will free whole pages of such before he is done with the game. He is himself an editor and was one time a Chicago reporter. In those days he was a friend of President McKinley, who referred to him as "the brightest man in Kansas." When he went to Chicago young Murdock was working for $9 a week on his father's paper, asking for a raise when he was turned down. Even though the old gentleman was then a celebrity in the Sunflower State, that did not prevent the cub from telling him that some day he would be "known as the father of Victor Murdock," in which he proved a better prophet than most politicians.

As an insurgent Murdock is good natured and usually succeeds in getting a laugh on his opponents. Beware the "cheerful reformer." In preparing a sham the pin point of humor may be a better weapon than the big stick of argument. Perhaps the greatest service Murdock has rendered the American people was in exposing the railway mail graft. Of old time the mails were weighed seven days a week, but to get the daily average the total of seven days was divided by six, which resulted in a clear gift to railroads of about $3,000,000 a year. Murdock exposed the fraud, and, although the house machine refused to correct it, President Roosevelt afterward did so.

The Valiant Thirty.

According to the list of house progressives furnished by Mr. Murdock himself, there are thirty in all—seven from Wisconsin, four from Minnesota, six from Iowa, three from Nebraska, two from Kansas, two from Ohio, two from Massachusetts and one each from New Jersey, North Dakota, California and Washington. A most important member of the group is Henry A. Cooper of Wisconsin, who presented the La Follette resolutions to the last Republican national convention and who received more votes for speaker of the house than any other insurgent. Another striking figure is Irvine L. Lenroot, a new member, who was speaker of the Wisconsin assembly before going to Washington. A third Wisconsin man of national note is John J. Egan, one of the authors of the present railroad rate law. William J. Gary, Arthur W. Cope, E. A. Morse and John Nelson make up the rest of the fighting seven from La Follette's state. Two of the progressives from Iowa, the hand of Cummins and Doolittle, is Elbert H. Hubbard, who has the name but nothing else belonging to the famous Philanthropist. Other Iowa insurgents are James W. Good, Gilbert N. Tamm, S. E. Knicker, Charles E. Pickett and Frank P. Woods. From Minnesota, where Senators Nelson and Chapp upheld the insurgent standard, a quarter of house members have followed them—Charles R. Davis, Charles A. Lindbergh, Halvor Steenerson and Andrew S. Volstead. Nebraska has one of the leaders of the house progressives in George W. Norris, formerly a district judge in that state, and two able members in E. H. Hinson and M. J. Kinkaid. New Jersey furnishes Charles S. Fowler, the former chairman of the house banking committee, who has written open letters to Cannon until Bunville was filled with flying explosives.

From Massachusetts hails Augustus P. Gardner, son-in-law of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who dares not Lodge swear that the house rules shall be amended whether the machine consents or not; also from the same state William C. Lovering, tiller of the house of the president, has two of the house insurgents in the persons of David A. Hollingsworth, a noted lawyer, and Alden H. Johnson. From Kansas Victor Murdock's companion in arms is E. H. Madison; from North Dakota comes Asie J. Groun; from California E. E. Hayes, one of the wealthiest members of the house, and from Washington state Miles Pollock.

The famous house inquiry, "Why is an insurgent?" finds its answer in the supposed proponent of the question Cannon himself is the reason, or, rather, one reason. The progressives say they are not going to leave the way to make the house a dollar a day and carry out pay-for-promises. I suspect that their real cause is deep-seated, being nothing less than the old fight between equal rights and special privileges.

Saved At Death's Door.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, New York, when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 40 pounds, coughing weaker daily; violent liver trouble pulling me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine—Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained all pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. See at Nivers Drug Co.

THE CHIEF INSURGENTS IN CONGRESS.

and, foremost, and this is the immediate object of his being, he wants to change Cannon and Aldrich of the political map. If he is in the house of representatives, what an irony there is in that word "representative"—he objects to the speaker being the whole works. He now regards the house as consisting of a number so large that there is not a type case in existence with figures enough to set it up, Cannon being represented by the figure "1" and the other 300 members by a long string of nines trailing after. That would be something like one million billion trillion quadrillion quintillion—oh, figure it out yourself!

My own view of an insurgent is that he is an honest man who by some mistake broke into congress. The other members do not know what to make of him. He knows what he would like to make of himself, but the speaker won't let him. That is the whole story. The insurgent wants to save the country and cover himself with glory, and here is this white whickered tyrant with the gavel, this old man with the artillery name, who bars the way. It is enough to make a saint insane.

A Growing Army.

As to the question, "Why is an insurgent?" his name is legion. The political woods are full of him. Nobody is certain of his neighbor. He does not know who will insure next. May be it will be himself. There are those who think that every time Speaker Cannon flips the table with his gavel a new insurgent springs into being. If this is true there will soon be millions of him. For a man of his years Uncle Joe certainly does make that innocent wooden hammer. He could give points in the tattoo line to a snare drummer or to the active and incessant woodpecker.

To be accurate, there are thirty in the insurgents in the house and something like eleven in the senate. Yet I can remember the day when Robert Marion La Follette was insuring alone, who have put over a brand of insurance for the last twenty years. He thought from a January distill of the northwest; Elmer J. Burkett and Norris Brown of Nebraska, who, coming as soon after Bryan, make him such a handsome and mild looking man that no one would dream of his going up against the fierce and empty Aldrich, the lowly Hule and the astute and high browed Lodge, and Coe I. Crawford of South Dakota, who, it is said, is "going back into camp." This is the list of senate insurgents up to date, but no one knows when it will be enlarged. The powers that be are not always sure of putting a finger on Senator Burton of Ohio, while the elections to fill the vacancies occurring on March 4, 1911, may bring in several new progressives.

Cannon In Front of Them!

If there are nutcrackers in the senate, however, there is actual hideous rebellion, complicated by about dancing and several different kinds of war medicine, in the house. Senatorial courtesy has a way of smoothing a wrinkle from until a fierce political contest looks like a perfectly decorous ministers' meeting. A struggle in the upper house that may involve millions of dollars and decide the political complexion of whole states looks about as exciting as a pink tea. But in the house it is different. There is perhaps a species of courtesy in the lower chamber, or what passes for such, but it is not so elaborate, oppressive and ponderous as that in the senate. In fact, the house courtesy is like that of the prize ring—the shake-hands-and-go-at-it kind. If we consider Senator La Follette the leader of the senate insurgents and Victor Murdock the chief of those in the house it is almost uncanny the way the two typify the character of the movement in their respective bodies. It recalls Sweden-

Europe's Highest Village.

"The highest village in Europe" is the inscription on a postcard which shows a group of wooden cottages on a bleak hill, with no sign of vegetation in sight and having as a background a range of ice-covered mountains. The name of the place is Chamonix, in the Canton Wallis. It is 2,047 meters above the sea level, "where Monte Rosa rises its gigantic head into the clouds." The village consists of four families, and the census gives it a population of twenty-six. "The storms of spring and fall and the snows of the winter months," says the sender of the card, "make life a dreary one, and still the people look happy, and doubtless they are so."

Object Lesson in Good Roads.

A Ghastly rural scene: a rural free delivery carrier became tired of tramping the dirt roads on his route and finding that he had no right to debar to read officials in regard to needed repairs, took a little of his spare time and had the fourth postman general advised on the subject. That official replied that if the roads were not put in repair at the earliest possible date—thirty days—the carrier can debar from those portions of his route that are out of repair and inform the families residing on these roads that the department will not maintain rural service over any road that cannot be traveled by the carriers with facility and safety at all seasons of the year.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A Cure Not Guaranteed.

Toothache, that scourge of our common humanity, has many "cures." The following remedy, however, would appear to be worse than the disease. It is to be found in "Choice and Experimental Receipts in Physics and Chemistry," as also Cordial and Distilled Waters and Spirits, Perfumes and Other Curiosities," a volume compiled by Sir Kenneth Digby and published in 1682. "With an iron nail, raise and cut the gum from about the tooth till it bleed and that some of all the blood stick upon the nail; on drive the nail into the gum, and pull it out. After this is done you shall never have the tooth-ach in all your life." This is described as "a sympathetic cure for the tooth-ach."

Lawson, the Boston millionaire of "Frenzied Finance" fame, proposes to fight the Tobacco Trust, using the Burley Tobacco Society 1909 pool of 118,000,000 pounds of tobacco as the basis for the operations of the company which he proposes to organize at once with a capital stock of $50,000,000 the total holdings of the Burley Society to be bought by the company for cash at a fair price, roughly estimate at 20 cents a pound.

After a conference held by Mr. Lawson with President LeBus and the executive committee of the Burley Society at the society's headquarters here, and which began this afternoon and lasted until near midnight, his plan was heartily approved by the society's leaders, and will, of course, receive formal endorsement at the meeting of the district board of the society. This means the sale on for cash of the entire holdings in the Burley pool and the appearance in the business world of one of the biggest and most novel combinations ever launched in America.

Best Wishes to All.

Enclosed find check on the "Old Reliable Breck. Bank" for the sum of $1.00, in payment of subscription for the year 1910. Wishing all Cloverport and vicinity a "Happy and Prosperous New Year," I am,

Very Truly,

What Tobacco Grower

Can Beat Archer?

P. P. Archer raised on twelve acres of ground, near Ekron, 11,600 pounds of tobacco. He sold it to Lou Gibson at $12 per 100 pounds straight. The whole crop brought $1,392.30. News would be pleased to learn of any tobacco grower who can come up to this.

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.--"My daughter was all run-down, suffered from pains in her side, head and limbs, and could walk but a short distance at a time. She came very near having nervous prostration, had begun to cough a good deal, and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills she has improved so much that she feels and looks like another girl."--Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Irassburg, Vermont.--"I feel it my duty to say a few words in praise of your medicine. When I began taking it I had been very sick with kidney and bladder troubles and nervous prostration. I am now taking the sixth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find myself greatly improved. My friends who call to see me have noticed a great change."--Mrs. A. H. Sanborn, Irassburg, Vermont.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful--or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Table Nictice
Try having a well polished table covered with clean doilies at breakfast and lunch and have meat but once a day, when you have the large, clean table cover on and a perfect but not elaborate meal. It will possibly repay you to wash, iron and enquire that old linen or duck skirt into round mats, one for each plate, one for each large dish and for every cup or tumbler. Lined oil and wax will polish your table, and two pretty candles, with sticks and shades, will give a dainty touch to the dinner table. The old silver center you have in the attic, cleaned with a mixture of whiting and ammonia and filled with thumb pots, green with ferns, will make an attractive and impressive ornament.

Wordsworth Up to Date
She was a phenomenon a sight When first she gleamed upon my sight, A shapelier shape in scanty dress To haunt, to startle, to distress.

I saw her upon nearer view, The things that woman had to do She had to tread a certain way And walk and wait for miles each day.

She couldn't eat a thing that's good For human nature's daily food, But just some hygienic stuff And stop before she'd had enough.

You'd think no one, however thin, Her stealthlike garments could get in. Even if you understood the cut You'd be surprised at the result--

A perfect woman nobly named, With hips and waist and certain round; A slight form, a halting gait, And something like an angel's weight,--Carry'd Wells in Harper's Magazine.

Encouragement.
Artist--Yes, I keep pegging away. Sometimes I get discouraged and say to myself, "What's the use?" Friend--Don't give up, old man. You can't do worse than you've done. You know--Exchange.

Tobacco Trouble Adjusted.

Owensboro, Jan. 11.--(Special.)--The trouble between John H. Nave, of Owensboro, and the poolers of Breckinridge county, has all been adjusted, and deliveries were resumed at Hardinsburg yesterday. The trouble arose over the grading of the tobacco, the growers contending that the grading was too low, and Mr. Nave thinking it to high. Both sides were so displeased that the deal for the 4,500,000 pounds of tobacco was declared off last Friday, but the board of control of the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association got together in this city and adjusted matters to mutual satisfaction.

That Rubber Plant.

Rubber plants which have been kept out of doors in summer are apt to become infested with worms which work in the soil. Unless the plant may not die, its growth is injured.
 A lover of house plants states that before taking in her rubber plants she saturates the soil with a weak solution of common mustard. This forces the worms to the surface, where they may be destroyed.

A teaspoonful of olive oil sprinkled about the roots of a rubber plant once a month will increase its growth. And a milk bath for leaves and stems will keep the plant dark and shining.

Mind Over Matter.

"Much may be done," said the acute observer, "by an authoritative voice."
 Now, if a man says to a dog, "Come here!" with a note of absolute authority in his voice the dog comes immediately.

"Yes," said the traveler. "I've noticed it. And it is especially marked in oriental people. Why, when I was in Khashmudj I heard a man say, with that authoritative note in his tone, 'O king, live forever,' and immediately the king lived forever!"
 Carolyn Wells in Success Magazine.

 they come to like doing it. —Ruskin.

FAMOUS SLEUTH IN NEW ROLE.

Stories of Lieutenant Sheridan,
Who Will Guard Banks.

LONG A TERROR TO CROOKS.

Well Known Detective, Formerly of the New York Police Department, is Noted For His Amazing Ability to Photograph Features on Memory.

Owing to an affection of the eyes which interferes with his proper vision, Lieutenant William Patrick Henry Sheridan, who is known to the law-breaking fraternity of two continents as "the man with the camera eye," recently retired from the detective department of the New York city police force to enter into partnership with William J. Burns, former secret service man, who is official guardian of the 1,400 banks in the American Bankers' association, a trust formerly held by the Pinkerton agency.

The remarkable memory for faces that characterizes Lieutenant Sheridan's career made him celebrated in police circles the world over. His eye was unerring, and once the features of a criminal's face were imbedded by him they were photographed in his mind, and he never made a mistake in identification. In this regard he was one of the most valued members of the city detective force, and as "the man with the camera eye" he was a terror to evildoers of every ilk.

Famed by Criminals.
Lieutenant Sheridan got his start under Inspector Thomas Byrnes in 1887, a year after his appointment to the force. He was sent after the assistant cashier who had robbed the National Park bank of $100,000 and after a search of six months found his quarry in a hole in the ground known as St. Michael's. He was instrumental in bringing hundreds of robbers, safe crackers and other criminals to justice. He especially excelled in his identification of criminals, every mark that served to identify them being photographed in his memory.

It is doubtful if there is another man in the United States who inspired more fear than did Sheridan in the hearts of criminals with records. No man in the history of the New York police department has been so quick to see through a disguise and to identify prisoners with pictures that had been taken five, ten and even twenty years before.

Many a city as far west as San Francisco came to learn that the appearance of Sheridan in Brooklyn was the surest means of ridding the city of a band of blundering crooks. Sheridan was the man to whom the New York police department turned when all others failed to identify a prisoner. If Sheridan passed a prisoner it was taken for granted that his picture was not among the greatest or more in the rogues' gallery.

Conviction of a Bank Sneak.

A case where Sheridan made good with his camera eye is that of a bank sneak, who was arrested in Brooklyn in 1903 and who gave the name of William Murphy. Murphy's picture was taken in Brooklyn and sent over to Mulberry street for a cross-examination. "Why," said Sheridan, "that's Bob Suffrage; served five years in Liverpool, eight years in Brussels and two years in King's Island. He was arrested twenty-one years ago by Tom Mulvey, on Reynolds' staff."

Inspector Titus sent Tom Mulvey over to the Mulberry street jail in Brooklyn to identify the prisoner. Mulvey took a look at him and reported that he never had arrested him, never had seen him, Sheridan himself had never seen Bob Suffrage. All that he had in mind were the pictures that had passed through his hands, two or three out of a total of 20,000 in the gallery. Sheridan still insisted that the Brooklyn sneak thief was the notorious Bob.

Finally the prisoner was arraigned before Judge Aspinwall and pleaded guilty. The judge said to him:

"Now I am going to ask you some questions, and if you tell the truth I'll take that into consideration in sentencing you. Is your name Bob Suffrage?" "Yes," said the prisoner, and then he went on to tell the judge he had served just as Sheridan had done from memory several weeks before.

How He Identified a Precious Pair.
Sheridan's friends love to tell how he identified Mott Haven and Frank Cold. They had been taken in by chance on the Bowery in New York, and when the precious pair were mood up the next day they told him of them, as they went on to Sheridan.

"That's Mott Haven Red, alias Joe Ray," said Sheridan instantly. "I saw his picture ten years ago. He got six years and eight months in Buncannon for blowing up a safe of the Standard Oil company in Syracuse."

The prisoner said Sheridan had identified, whereupon Sheridan said he identified, whereupon Sheridan said he identified, whereupon Sheridan said he identified.

"Pull up his sleeve and you'll find 'W. I. E.' tattooed on his right forearm." The letters were there.

"Now look on his right hand and see if the cord on the little finger has not been shortened," said Sheridan, and it was. That was too much for Mott Haven Red, and he confessed his identity.

That is but one instance in many which the detectives recall in illustrating Sheridan's wonderful faculty.

Stops Lameness

Much of the chronic lameness in horses is due to neglect. See that your horse is not allowed to go lame. Keep Sloan's Liniment on hand and apply at the first sign of stiffness. It's wonderfully penetrating, goes right to the spot—relieves the soreness—limbers up the joints and makes the muscles elastic and pliant.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. G. T. Roberts of Resaca, Ga., R.F.D. No. 1, Box 41, writes: "I have used your Liniment on a horse for several weeks and effected a thorough cure. It's so removed a splain on a mule. This again was as large as a golf ball. In my estimation the best remedy for lameness and soreness is."

Sloan's Liniment

Mr. H. M. Gibbs, of Lawrence, Kans., R.F.D. No. 3, writes: "Your Liniment is the best I have ever used. I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one eye, both of Sloan's Liniment effected a cure. I keep it on hand all the time for cuts and small swellings and for everything about the horse."

Sloan's Liniment will kill a spavin, curb or splint, reduce wind puffs and swollen joints, and is a sure and speedy remedy for fistula, swellings, founder and thrush.

"PASSING THE TRAY."

A New Custom in Fast-tenable Restaurants.

One of the most attractive features of modern hotel and restaurant service is what is known as the "passing of the tray." This is now gaining much of its popularity at many fashionable establishments, whether the time be the luncheon, the tea or the dinner hour. In this tray is arranged an artistic assortment of morsels of pastry, each one of it is a small display of fine paper or of the best, the effect being often extremely decorative. When the tray is not in actual use it is usually placed in some conspicuous spot, where its contents may be examined as one enters or leaves the dining room. Such a tray is well worth while and is considered quite the proper thing. Examination suggests to the housewife an idea for her own table for Thanksgiving week, when entertainments of all sorts are in order.

The foundation of these pretty little dishes is the regulation puff paste or French pastry. The very name strikes terror to the heart of the average housekeeper, who looks with hopeless longing at the daily little bits holding delicate mixtures of fresh or preserved fruit or of some perfectly prepared filling of cream. She invariably decides that these things are among the most impossible of all. But the tray of pastry at some fashionable hotel has been the incentive necessary to make up her mind to undertake the work of duplicating some of the pretty things for her own home table.

Slave to Servants.

"I am very tired," said the fashionably dressed woman. "I have been working dreadfully hard all day. Doing what? Why, seeing to my servants working for them. Didn't you know that the more servants you have the harder you must work? Certainly. I have to do all the shopping for my servants. I have to buy their oil, fur, the caps and aprons of the maids and the clothing of the housekeeper. I have to see to the marketing too. Yes, and very often in spite of the fact that I have a housekeeper, I must, or they will form a combine to rob me of everything I have. The housekeeper will be so tired that she will be unable to retire in a few years. Then perhaps it is I who must hunt a place then as housekeeper for some one else. Oh, yes, if you want to keep your position as mistress of a household of servants you must keep busy. You can't afford to let the grass grow under your feet in any great extent."

ATHLETIC TRAINING.

To Acquire an Excess of Muscle May Prove Injurious.

Nothing could be more elusive than the idea that by the method of athletic training a man can lay in a stock of health and strength upon which he can draw later while engaged in a secondary occupation. The truth is that the muscles and hypertrophied heart of the athlete are perilous possessions for the man who no longer uses the time or the inclination for athletic sports. When he stops the exercises by which he gained them, instead of simply returning to their original size they suffer for one or another of the many forms of degeneration and become incapable of performing their original services.

It is not quite true that all exercise of its own sake is harmful, for it is well to be prepared for the meeting of life's little emergencies as well as its ordinary and daily demands, but it probably is true that the emergencies apart, every man does enough in going about his customary business and pleasure to keep himself in the condition which that business and pleasure demand and that anything besides is superfluous or injurious. That athletes take one into the open air is less a commendation of the outdoors than a dictum of our houses, offices and stores for lack of adequate ventilation. If all the air we breathe was pure air we could get along well enough with our open air at all. Any man who has the muscle he needs for doing the things he wants to do and should do has all the muscle he needs. To have To acquire more is a silly waste of time and perilous besides.—New York Times.

FEET OF SEA BEASTS.

Their Appearance When the Skin is Stripped Off.

All of the feet that I have looked at I know only one more utterly ridiculous than the twisted flipper on which the sea lion props his great bulk in front, and that is the forked flipper which extends from the hinder part of the same. How can it be worth any least's while to carry such an absurd apparatus with it just for the sake of getting out into the air sometimes and pushing oneself about on the ice and being eaten by polar bears? The porpoise has discarded one pair, turned the other into a pair of fins, and recovered a grace and power of motion in water which is not equaled by the greyhound on land. Why have the sea's hanc legs? I held it for the secret. It is the baby! No one knows where the porpoise and the whale create their newborn infants—it is so difficult to pry into the life and ways of these sea people—but evidently the sea's cannot maintain it, so they are forced to return to the land when the cares of maternity are upon them.

I have called the feet of these sea beasts ridiculous things, and so they are as we see them. But strip off the skin, and, I assure you, a different foot, with five digits each of several joints, fitted with claws, now presents itself. In short, from that with which the head or foot is set out in a past or distant for our human imagination. Admiration itself is paralyzed by a creature so simple, so transparent and so sufficient for every need that time and change could bring.—Strand Magazine.

A Willing Scot.

Dean Itany has a story of that border hostility between English and Scots which used to go to bitter lengths. A Scotch driver was returning from the south in particular had humor with the English, having done poor business, when he saw in (perhaps a mile) a fine house and a revenue of £50 to say one who would volunteer for the important task of hanging a condemned criminal. Seeing his chance to make up for his loss, he accepted the job and for his money. As he was leaving he was told that a Scotchman, Scot, doing for his money, was no Englishman worth. But he answered, with a cheerful grin, "I'll hang 'em at the price."

Ways to an Untimely End.

The catalogue of the ways and means employed by otherwise sensible people to incur the risk of disease and an untimely end include running to catch trolley cars, breathing rapidly through the mouth instead of deeply through the nose, eating too hastily and overeating, "slouching" instead of standing and walking in an erect attitude, using an unnecessary stimulant, failing to exterminate the pestiferous housefly, which goes blithely about carrying the germs of disease, sleeping in ill ventilated rooms and failing to protect food from flies and other insects by proper screening.—Philadelphia Press.

Do You Get Up

With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is so famous because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fails almost every wish in over-crowded rheumatism, pain in the back, kidney, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and I will send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Inc., 501 Broadway, New York. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CN CANADIAN FARMS.

Where Women Do All the Rough Work of Dairying.

If there is any branch of farm work more than another to which women can apply themselves with beneficial effect and without detriment to their natural qualities it is to dairying. From very early times the dairy has been looked upon as belonging to the domain of women's work, and, though as is proper, the rougher duties of feeding and milking the cows are generally in this country usually performed by men, women are invariably prominent in the handling of the produce that passes through the dairy on its way to the table. From the force of circumstances women take an ever more prominent part in the work of the dairy in Canada than in our own country. Not only are the indoor duties mostly performed by the female members of the household, but because of the severity of and the high wages commanded by male laborers

THE MILK SEPARATOR AT WORK—CREAM COMES FROM THE TOP.

They also apply themselves to the more arduous operations that belong to the category of out of door work. The illustration conveys some idea of the active part which women take in the dairy work of Canada, and the remarkable development of dairying, and especially cheese-making, in the Dominion testifies to the efficiency with which their efforts in this sphere of usefulness and affords convincing proof of the fitness of women to engage with profit to themselves and benefit to the nation in the general work of the dairy.

Here's a Way to Save.

American housewives are slow to learn that the tomato paste found at Italian groceries is an economy in cooking whenever tomato sauce or flavoring is wanted. A ten cent can of paste contains many times its bulk in the whole vegetable since the water is evaporated from it. A family which depends upon the paste for everything that calls for tomatoes, excepting the real vegetable flavoring, cooks macaroni in this way: The macaroni is first boiled tender in salted water. Then it is put into the upper part of a double boiler with a cupful or so of boiling water, a teaspoonful of tomato paste, a dash of salt, a dash of sugar, a dash of butter and a dash of oil. The mixture is stirred until the sugar is dissolved. Then boil without stirring until the mixture forms a hard ball when tested in cold water.

Sea Foam Candy.

Put three cups of light brown sugar, a cup of water and a tablespoonful of vinegar into a saucepan. Heat gradually to the boiling point, adding only until the sugar is dissolved. Then boil without stirring until the mixture forms a hard ball when tested in cold water.

Remove from the fire and when it stops bubbling pour the mixture into the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, beating constantly. Beat until it becomes quite stiff, then add a cup of chopped nut meats. Drop from a spoon on buttered tins.

Comfortable Way to Furnish Living Room For the Winter.

A DIVAN-LIKE COUCH.

By Bash Curtains of Chesapeake Charming—Every Article of Furniture Should Convey Idea of Warmth as Well as Comfort.

Red and green are the two colors most appropriate for a den, and if you cannot afford to have leather furniture in these shades upholstered in artificial effects would be an excellent choice. Every article of furniture in the room should convey the idea of usefulness as well as comfort, for that reason chairs should be of a sofa should be piled with cushions and there should be one or more armchairs, upholstered in a material of space for smoking men's boots, work or for whatever one may wish to place on them.

The walls of such a den a wall of soft, dull red would be suitable. The floor should be covered with a heavy carpet, and the walls should be covered with a heavy paper, perhaps, of a warm, rich color, like a deep red or a dark blue.

INCREASED COST OF LIVING.

Secretary Wilson Making Extended Inquiry Through Field Employees.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who helped the country to find out "what is wrong," is now directing his attention to the question, "Why is the cost of living greater?"

Mr. Wilson, through the hundreds of field employees of his department, is attempting to ascertain what the difference is between retail and wholesale prices for foodstuffs. He desires to know, it was declared, why the cost of food to the consumer is greater and whether the farmer, the middleman or the retail merchant is to blame. The inquiry is directed toward the increased prices of butter, eggs, milk, apples, potatoes and other common or garden fruits and vegetables.

Secretary Wilson began this inquiry because he did not believe that the farmers of the country were receiving higher prices than they should get for their products, as had been said by many so-called authorities who wished to explain the higher cost of living. It was asserted that he believed the middlemen are responsible for the higher prices.

Recently Mr. Wilson made an investigation into the reported high cost of meat. He found, according to his annual report, that the meat gross profits in selling meats to the ultimate consumer were 35 per cent and that in some cities this percentage was as high as 68. This meant, the report said, that the cost to consumers was 35 to 68 per cent above the price the retailer paid to the wholesale merchant.

The same sources of information which were relied on to gather the data on meat were directed to the investigation into the prices of other foodstuffs. This investigation the secretary regarded as most important and it was pointed out that he expected to find whether there is a combination to raise retail prices or the distribution of foodstuffs is done in a way that is too expensive. It was said that congressional action may be necessary later.

Plan to Aid Mine Workers. With the assistance of mine operators the Young Men's Christian association in eastern Pennsylvania has begun a campaign to establish mining institutes throughout the anthracite region. Bases of operation are being established at several points. One of the principal objects of this movement is to afford opportunities to the foreigners in large numbers who, for the most part, are untrained in mining and ignorant of the English language. C. L. Fay, the organization's mining work secretary, says that meetings held at Carbonade, Scranton, Wilkesbarre and other cities and towns have been unusually successful. KINDERGARTEN BOOTS.

How to Make a Pretty Pair of Baby's First Boots.

A dainty pair of baby's boots can be made easily and quite inexpensively in the following way:

First cut out your silk lining in exact shape of pattern shown, adding a little straight strip to form back part of shoe. Take your ribbons and sew them along the top of material, using your colors alternately, cutting the length of ribbon to size of material. Then plait in and out from side to side (see Fig. 1), which will form little squares in the shades of ribbon chosen. Pale pink, blue and white look very dainty. Bind round all the edges with a wider white ribbon, the binding being used to finish off the work and also in stitching the soles to the uppers, enabling one to make a very neat job.

KINDERGARTEN BOOTS.

How to Make a Pretty Pair of Baby's First Boots.

A dainty pair of baby's boots can be made easily and quite inexpensively in the following way:

First cut out your silk lining in exact shape of pattern shown, adding a little straight strip to form back part of shoe. Take your ribbons and sew them along the top of material, using your colors alternately, cutting the length of ribbon to size of material. Then plait in and out from side to side (see Fig. 1), which will form little squares in the shades of ribbon chosen. Pale pink, blue and white look very dainty. Bind round all the edges with a wider white ribbon, the binding being used to finish off the work and also in stitching the soles to the uppers, enabling one to make a very neat job.

Drop by drop the offensive discharge caused by Nasal Catarrh falls from the back of the nose into the throat, setting up an inflammation that is likely to mean Chronic Bronchitis. The most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh is Ely's Cream Balm, and the relief that follows even the first application cannot be told in words. Don't suffer a day longer from the discomfort of Nasal Catarrh. Cream Balm is sold by all druggists for 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

THE BLUE WHALE.

A Monster Skeleton That is Eighty-seven Feet in Length.

What is claimed as the largest animal in the world is represented by a colossal skeleton in the museum of Christchurch, New Zealand, says the London Globe. This is the remains of a large specimen of the blue whale stranded on the coast of that country. This whale is probably the largest of all living animals. The length of the skeleton is eighty-seven feet, and the head alone is twenty-one feet. The weight of the bones is estimated at nine tons. This gigantic whale gets its name of blue whale from the dark bluish gray of its upper surface. The tinge of yellow on its lower part has led to the name "sulphur bottom," by which it is known on the western side of the Atlantic. It is otherwise known as Sibbald's rorqual (Baleenoptera sibbaldi).

The chief food of this gigantic animal is a small marine crustacean (Thysanopoda termis), known to the whalers as "krill." Another species of the same shrimplike group has been obtained in thousands from the stomachs of mackerel caught on the Cornish coast. The nearly related opossum shrimp found in enormous numbers in the Greenland seas form the chief food of the common whale. Some of the thysanopods are phosphorescent and contribute to the luminosity of the sea.

After the Show.

A well dressed man, said to be an Englishman, has been arrested in Montmartre, Paris, on a charge of tendering half sovereigns for dinners and entertainments, which reminds us of the story about the touring company which has been doing very bad business in "the snails." While the proprietor and sole representative manager was standing outside the temporary theater (the Corn Exchange) a very small boy with a very large meal on arrived and proposed to barter the fruit for a seat in the gallery. The bargain was duly concluded, and the seven new clowns to the interior of the theater after the performance. "That man was not a clown," "That's all right," said the proprietor, "but he was a very bad one."

LANDES SHEPHERDS.

French Peasants Who Are Experts in

Walking on Stilts. There is a vast district in France where the entire community goes about and transacts its business on stilts. This district is called "Les Landes."

The inhabitants, who are among the poorest peasants in France, gain their subsistence by fishing, by such little agriculture as is possible and by keeping cows and sheep. The shepherds make use of their stilts for two purposes—first, because walking is quite impossible on account of the sage and undergrowth of brush, and second, because the height of their stilts gives them a greater range of vision.

The stilts generally are about six or seven feet high. Near the top there is a support for the foot, which has a strong stirrup and strap, and still nearer the top a band of leather fastens the stilt firmly to the leg just below the knee. Some stilts, especially those made for fancy walking and for tricks, are even higher than seven feet, and the man who uses these—and he must be an expert—can travel as fast as ten miles an hour. The lower end of this kind of stilt is cupped with a sheep bone to prevent its splitting.

Some of these Landes shepherds are wonderfully clever in the management of their stilts. They run races, step or jump over brooks, clear fences and walls and are able to keep their balance and equilibrium while stooping to the ground to pick up pellets or to gather wild flowers. They fall prone upon their faces and assume "vibrant" perpendicular without an effort and in a single moment after they have thus prostrated themselves.—Technical World Magazine.

A VICTIM OF WORRY.

The Man Who is Always Expecting Some Kind of Trouble.

There is always a cloud on his face because he is constantly expecting that something unfavorable is going to happen. There is going to be a slump in business, or he is going to have a loss, or somebody is trying to undermine him, or he is worried about his health, or fears his children will be sick or go wrong or be killed. All this man has been chasing rainbows, thinking if he could only get a little farther on, a little higher up, he would be happy. But he is just as far from it as when a boy.

I believe this condition has all come from the habit of unhappiness which he formed during his hard boyhood and which he has never been able to overcome. He has learned to look for trouble, to expect it, and he gets it. I have seen him live many a time. He has a beautiful home, a very charming wife, a most delightful family, but there is always the same cloud on his face, the same expression of anxiety, of unhappiness, of foreboding.

A little properly directed training in his boyhood would have changed his whole career, and he would have been a happy, joyous, harmonious man, instead of being discontent and unhappy. There is everything in starting right. What is put into the first life is put into the whole life.—Success Magazine.

Self Control.

The self control of the Japanese, even in times of the utmost stress, and their courtesy, which begets quietness and discretion, are both brought out by a writer in St. Paul's Magazine.

"Cry. It will do you good," I said once to a poor Japanese woman who, crouching beside her dying husband, was controlling herself with an effort that would, I feared, make her ill.

She laid her little slim brown finger upon her trembling red lip and shook her head, then whispered, "It might disturb him."

"Cry. It will do you good," I said the next day, when the man was dead and she seemed almost to breathe with grief and overpowered self control.

"It would be most rude to make a hideous noise before the sacred dead," came the soft reply.

Bread and Pips Baker.

The lecturer at the cooking school sometimes enlivened her remarks with an anecdote.

"The eighteenth century baker," she said, "was a pipe cleaner as well, just as the barber a little earlier was a surgeon. Everybody in those days smoked clay pipes, provided the same as cups or spoons by the coffee houses. Well, each morning a waiter carried his master's stock of pipes, some hundred perhaps, to the nearest bakery. The baker would hold them, then dip them in liquid lime, then make them dry. They came out of the oven as sweet and white as new."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Degree of Hunger.

"I'm simply starving!" cried the short story writer at the Hungry club. "I wish they'd begin dinner."

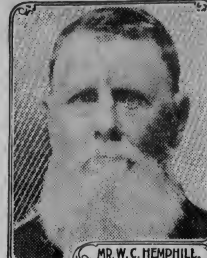

"I never saw you when you weren't starving," said the poet.

"I'm never as hungry as you are, though," the short story writer declared. "Because I write prose."—New York Press.

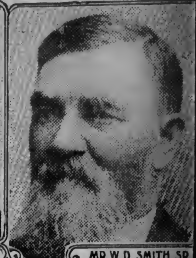

Good Imagination.

"I commenced to take Peruna according to directions, and began to improve. I have taken ten bottles of Peruna and think I am cured."—Mr. W. C. Hemphill, Louisville, Mich.
